Q & A with Director/Head Coach Phil Pincince

What has made the Brown Soccer School Day Camp such a special week for young boys and girls over the last 31 years?

First and foremost it is the coaching staff. Our Coaches all have a passion for the game of soccer and can play, teach and pass on this passion along with the ability to relate to campers of all abilities and ages. At the end of the week every player leaves more confident, knowledgeable, and ready to take their game of soccer to the next level. Players have fun learning through innovative training and small sided games. End of day World Cup Games are an exciting way for all to try new techniques in a match condition. The Brown Soccer School is one of the most organized camps in the country, from registration to the closing ceremonies. The best advertising for the BSS is by the players that have attended. Speak to one today and find out how special this week was for them.

What has separated the Brown Soccer School Overnight Week for Girls from the rest of the camps in the country over the last 31 years?

We have only one week of overnight and we make this week very special. Our staff is fresh and ready. I have never bought into the 6 to 8 week soccer factory. Quality not quantity! The major reason for the success of the BSS is that we rotate our qualified, professional coaching staff. Every girl attending the Brown Soccer School will experience the professional coaching of at least 75% of the staff. Most camps leave one coach with a training group all week, not so at the Brown Soccer School. I believe that you can learn something new from every coach and keep the ideas fresh and creative through different coaching techniques, personalities and presentation. This has been a winning formula at the Brown Soccer School. Our special sessions on Nutrition and Marketing yourself for College are also always a big hit. Many players from all over the country have been recruited for College after attending the Brown Soccer School. Year in and year out we recruit players from BSS that we have not seen at the tournaments we attend throughout the country and other college coaches on our staff do the same. Players deal with technical development in the morning, tactical development in the afternoon, and play World Cup Matches in the evening. All this is thrown in with an Ivy League atmosphere in Providence, RI. But the best advertising for the BSS is by the players that have attended. Speak to one today and find out how special this week was for them.

Please note that the Brown Soccer School at Brown is not affiliated directly with Brown University
